THREE SCORCHERS.

Saturday, Sunday And Monday Warm Members.

Hottest Weather of The Season, Going to 102 Degrees.

Saturday was the hottest day of the season, going very close to 100 degrees. Sunday was still worse and made a record of 102. Yesterday was still hot, but a good breeze helped some and it was not quite so hot. The scorching sun has brought about a considerable drouth and rain is now needed. The weather bureau holds out but little consolation for to day. In the meantime the ice war still goes merrily on and even the poor people have a chance to keep cool.

COMMON LOW CASES

Claiming Attention of Circuit Court Since Last Report.

Common low matters have been claiming the attention of Circuit court since our last report of proceedings. The jury in the case of D. A. Tandy against the Chicago Fertilizer Company brought in a verdict yesterday for plaintiff for $1,200.

In the matter of Mary E. Brown against James E. Brown an absolute divorce was granted.

Dora Bell Heck was granted a divorce from her husband, Adam L. Heck.

The suits of James P. Drake, Willie Davis, and L. G. Williams, against the L. & N. railroad company were dismissed, settled.

HALF RATES.

Railroads Will Help Push the Western Convention.

The great Hopkinsville Good Roads Convention, July 10 and 11, will be the only one at which a metalled modern road will be constructed in Kentucky, by the National Good Roads Association. The vast special train of 17 cars, with all the most improved machinery for crushing stone and building a turnpike road, will be on hand five days ahead of the convention to build the sample road.

Hopkinsville will extend a cordial welcome to all visitors and delegates and the railroads will give one fare rate for the round trip. You can't afford to miss it.

MISS O'BRIEN DEAD.

Remains Brought Here From Earlington for Interment.

A telephone message yesterday morning conveyed the intelligence that Miss Kate O'Brien, formerly of this city, died at her home in Earlington Sunday night. She had been sick only about a week.

Deceased was a sister of the late John O'Brien and was about 50 years old. Her funeral was held at the Catholic church in Earlington yesterday afternoon and the remains arrived here at 5:23 and were interred in Hopewell cemetery.

IN THE TOILS.

Charles Hampton Again in Pen-Sent From Evansville.

A special from Jeffersonville Ind., says:

"Henry Quarles and Charles Hampton, citizens of Hopkinsville, Ky., when not in prison, came in for an indeterminate sentence. At Evansville, while Quarles 'stood watch,' as is explained in the court's report of the case, Hampton stole a pair of shoes from Moses Cregler. Hampton was liberated from Eddyville prison last April. He was sent there for housebreaking."

STORM KING

Rides Upon The Winds Carrying Death and Destruction.

Floods in West Virginia Destroy Hundreds of Lives and Millions of Property.

Bluefields, W. Va., June 23.—This section of the West Virginia mountains, and particularly the Flat Top region, has been visited by a flood which has been appalling in its results. Though wires are prostrated and details meager, it is believed that in this section alone 500 or 600 lives have been lost, and that a property loss aggregating $2,000,000 has been entailed. Thirty miles of track of the Norfolk and Western railroad is entirely destroyed, and each of the thirty-three mines which form the leading industry of this section, is damaged, and some of them are ruined.

Early Saturday morning shortly after midnight a heavy downpour of rain began, accompanied by a severe electric storm, which violently increased in volume. This continued throughout the entire day and last night, and at 10 a. m. Sunday, while the storm has abated, the lowering clouds would indicate another terrific downpour at any moment.

Keystone, a town of about 2,000 inhabitants, was almost totally destroyed, and about 200 persons are believed to have lost their lives. The town of Vivian was also in the storm center.

Storms have caused damage in other sections, and they seem to have covered a wide area. In the Kanawha valley, West Virginia, railways are washed out and a flood is feared. In the Clinch river valley, Virginia, fatalities resulted. Four persons were killed, several were injured, and much property loss was entailed near Pittsburg. There were severe storms in Central Ohio and Central Indiana, while in Logan county, Ill., damage to the extent of $100,000 was caused by a tornado.

DR. E. B. MCCORMICK

Gives Important Testimony Before the Grand Jury.

Dr. E. B. McCormick, of Owensboro, arrived in the city Sunday afternoon and appeared before the grand jury yesterday morning, returning to Owensboro at 11:40.

It is understood that Dr. McCormick made a very important witness and supplied the direct testimony the grand jury had not before obtained in regard to gambling in the asylum. He is quoted as saying that he made a full breast of all matters upon which he was questioned. His disclosures bore upon the inside facts that had been so hard to get before the grand jury. Other important witnesses are expected to be secured in a day or two.

KENTUCKY HOSPITALITY

All Western Kentucky is invited to attend this great object lesson at the convention at which the science of road building in all its branches will be fully discussed.

County Judges from 40 western counties have been invited to appoint delegates and the Western Convention will be the only one in the state at which all kinds of road building will be shown. Everybody invited and urged to attend.

AT A LODGE PICNIC

Snake Tried to Get in a Colored Brother's Boots.

The colored population had a high old time at Trenton Saturday. One of the numerous Lodges gave a celebration and a large excursion was run from this city. At Trenton there were all day exercises in the woods and much speechmaking was indulged in. One very exciting incident came near breaking up the meeting. While an aged brother was reposing upon a bench with his legs dangling under him a large moccasin snake quietly encircled one of his legs and poked his head up between the old man's knees. The brother at once proceeded to dance a horripole not down on the programme to the consternation of the panic-stricken audience.

In the confusion, the snake let go.

BURGLARY AT CLARDY.

John O. Menser's Store Robbed Sunday Night.

Crofton, Ky., June 24.—The general merchandise store of John O. Menser, of Clardy, was burglarized last night. The thieves got $10 in dimes, nickles and pennies from the cash drawer but no goods were missed. Two suspicious characters were seen in that neighborhood yesterday and they made some small purchases here this morning and then left, going in the direction of Nortonville. The authorities at the latter place have been communicated with by telephone and arrests will probably follow.

Mr. J. E. Croft, wife and daughter, Miss Ethel Croft, left this morning for Hot Springs, Ark., where they will spend some time. Mr. Croft has been sick for some time and it is hoped that his stay may prove beneficial.

In the case of Enos vs. Snyder (Cal.), 63 Pac. Rep. 170, it was held that a person has no property in his own dead body so far as to be able to dispose of it by will, but that the next of kin are entitled to the right of burial.

A VENERABLE ANTEDILUVIAN.

It is a Giant to Be Small Among Its Own Kin.

An antediluvian animal millions of years old, nobody knows how old, has been restored skeletonwise in the Peabody museum, of Yale university, by the authority of the museum. It will be a feature of the scientific exhibit for the bi-centennial celebration of the university next October.

The scientific name of the monster reptile is Chasmosaur Amplexites Marsh. It was dug up in Converse county, Wyo., several years ago, by a party of investigators, headed by J. B. Fletcher, of the Peabody museum, working under the direction of Prof. Osborn. The skeleton was found in the museum.

Two years ago its restoration was begun by Mr. Hugh Hight, assistant to Prof. Charles E. Beecher, curator of the museum, who supervised the work.

Some idea of the dimensions of the animal may be secured from the following details: The animal is 29 feet 3 inches in length. The height of the head above the base is 13 feet 2 inches. The height of shoulders above the base is 10 feet 2 inches. Length of hind limbs 9 feet 5 inches.

Prof. Beecher said of the animal: "The dinosaur was a herbivorous reptile. It has been called the 'dragon of the prime.' The order is wholly extinct, not a descendant of the order being left alive anywhere. The dinosaur wandered all over this country, over Europe, Africa, in India, New Zealand and Australia. It was as harmless as a toad, despite its great size. The one we have mounted was a comparatively small specimen. We have the bone of one 50 times as large, but we have not the money to spend in restoring and mounting it. Nor would we have the room to exhibit it."

This specimen is mounted to show the animal in rapid motion. There is nothing dead about its attitude. "It is interesting to note that the form is birdlike. That will strike you at a glance. The feet are really like joints, having the same number of bones and toes. The fore-feet were not used in locomotion, but were prehensile organs, and the thumb was undoubtedly opposite to every finger. The teeth were placed in the back of the mouth, not in front. That indicates that they were used to grind, not bite, food."

With the animal were found a great number of bony scales, such as are found in the skin of our alligators. These have been preserved and partially restored, so that we have been able to see what was the nature of the covering, or hide, of the animal. — N. Y. Herald.

TO A DEAD MINSTREL.

Beside the maple's mossy tomb
The hermit thrush lies dead,
Among the white aspens,
Like vapors 'round its bed.

Its downy breast of dappled gray,
Its russet wings are still,
Its velvet throat no longer more
With heavenly music thrills.

At evening's golden altar glow
The haunting notes of woe,
To hear from out the leafy choir
That evening dirge.

So pure and sweet that other sounds
Seemed harsh in air; its joy
The while that mingles melody
Filled all the listening air.

Sweet minstrel of the twilight hour,
When purple shadows creep
Through dimly lighted forest aisles
And flowers close in sleep.

In there no land beyond the stars
Where we shall hear again
Thy hymn of perfect peace and joy
When time is free from pain?

Shall we alone, with sorrowful
Mourning and grief to come,
Of all God's children be the few
Whom time is free from pain?

Each day we see the Father's will
And praise Him with a psalm,
Whose peace fell on the troubled heart,
Like God's own healing balm.

And cannot He who made the sun
And sees the sparrow's fall
Protect a home so sweet and large
That it will shelter all?

ON THE TRAIL OF THE TOTEM BEAR.

By William Murray Graydon.

TWO men stood on the primitive landing stage at Nuechuk, the little Alaskan settlement whose huts and cabins clustered round the entrance of Cook's inlet. A short distance out in the harbor the cargo steamer Yukon lay at anchor.

"Well, what are you going to do about it?" said Markham, an elderly and experienced trader, who was the company's agent at Nuechuk. "You must decide quickly, for there isn't much time. Better stop over for the next boat. It's a rare chance, for you are sure to fetch back a totem bear—perhaps a couple of 'em."

"And the yield of Indians? The tribes on the headwaters of the Copper river have a bad name."

"They won't molest us," Markham replied, hurriedly. "Come, what do you say?" he added. "The Yukon sails within the hour."

"Let her sail," exclaimed Quin, with sudden decision. "I don't go with her. I've chosen for the totem bear."

Two days later Quin and Markham, with ten hired coast Indians, were traveling north. A journey of 120 miles through an unexplored region, attended with numerous difficulties and hardships, brought them to a good-size tributary of the Copper river. There they camped, and for the night was spent in constructing from felled trees, by the aid of what tools they had been able to transport, a long, narrow raft, with a cabin in the middle. This was completed one evening, and the next morning the Indians were missing to a man.

The two men who were embarked the following morning, and three days later, towards the close of the afternoon, they were drifting on the deep, rapid tide of the Copper river.

"When are we going to tie up?" asked Quin.

"Oh, any time you like. We had better stop on a mile or two, though," said Markham, with his eyes brightened and his perplexed expression vanished. He stood in a listening attitude, gazing at a tall pinnacle of rock that had suddenly been revealed by the curve of the channel. From far down the river floated a dull, roaring noise.

"There are rapids, you see," he added. "We'll lay up here for the night, and run them in the morning."

He bent to the oar, and within five minutes the boat was alongside the highland shore, where it was moored fast to the stump of a tree. It lay in deep, swift water, off the end of a promontory that jutted a dozen yards into the river. Immediately below was the mouth of a valley.

"By heavens, look yonder!" exclaimed Markham.

Glancing in line with his companion's outstretched arm, Quin beheld a huge animal standing 30 feet away at the edge of the timber. He had no need to ask what it was. He knew that he was in the presence of a totem bear for the first time he had seen.

For a brief instant, swinging its massive head, the brute surveyed the two men. Then, with sudden growth, it reared and galloped easily into the forest.

"I thought that bear!" cried Quin. "If it had shot him, but I can't take him alive."

When they had gone nearly a mile up the valley the big four-legged animal suddenly disappeared. They pushed on for 100 yards, then stopped. Night was close at hand, and the forest was as dark as twilight.

"We've lost the trail!" exclaimed Quin.

"Yes, he must have turned off the path," said Markham. "We'll go back to the forest."

They left the path, here for a short distance to the left through the trees and emerged on a small clearing. They were before them, standing darkly against the purple twilight, a low square structure of logs. It resembled a hut, though it had neither door nor window, and on the top of it squatted a huge, grizzly-looking totem bear.

"There must be a village near by," whispered Quin. "This looks like the burial place of an Indian chief."

Markham replied, eagerly, "I'm in luck to find the spot again."

Jim Allen of the Cynthia Democrat is a shell-corn bachelor, but in matters of observation he seems to be abreast of the times. Read this:

The difference between a coming-out gown and a going-away gown is the one goes away up close around the neck and the other comes out the top of the other as far as she can without creating a scandal.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Eczema

How it reddens the skin, robs, causes, dries and scales!

Some people call it better, milk crust or salt crust.

The suffering from it is sometimes intense; local applications are resorted to; they relieve, but cannot cure. It proceeds from humors inherited or acquired and persists until these have been removed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla positively removes them, has radically and permanently cured the worst cases and is without an equal for all cutaneous eruptions.

Hood's Pills are the best cathartic. Price 25 cents.

Adelbert S. Hay, son of Secretary of State Hay, fell from a window in a hotel at New Haven, Conn., Saturday and was instantly killed. It is supposed he was sitting in the window of his room and lost his balance. He fell sixty feet. He was 25 years old and graduated from Yale College in 1898. He served while last year as consul at Pretoria and would have soon become Assistant Private Secretary to President McKinley.

There is always something the matter with everything. In some quarters it is claimed that there should have been no carpet on the new church because it furnishes refuge for deers. There is an easy remedy. Let officers be stationed at each door to search sinners.—Cynthia Democrat.

Don't you know Bro. Allen, that the Bible says: "The wicked flea when no man pursueth?"

W. W. Brannon, a farmer near Statesboro, Ga., dug up a pot of ante-bellum gold coins, containing $30,000. Brannon dreamed that he found a pot of gold and later a hypnotist put his little daughter in a trance and she said she could see her father digging a pot of gold coins out of the mill race. Brannon, after digging three weeks, found the vessel as described.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals has refused to enjoin the Kentucky Heating Company from using natural gas for heating purposes. As nobody wants to use any kind of gas for heating purposes at this season of the year, perhaps the able court would not mind favoring the gas people by enjoining the weather clerk from using the sun's rays for the same purpose?

The latest information from Louisville is to the effect that John Whalen has returned to the Democratic party and all factions of the party are trying to get together. It may be an unpleasant thing to admit, but it is nevertheless true that the Democrats have never carried Louisville without John Whalen's support.

The subject of good roads is the most important one the people of Kentucky, or any other State, can consider. Good roads will add immensely to the value of farming property, and will make the market easily accessible to farm and garden products, and by increasing the productiveness of the land in the country, will lead to large purchases of lands.

EQ MAJOR'S POSITION.

Not a Candidate But Willing to Run On Fusion Ticket.

THE KENTUCKIAN: In your last issue you say I am a candidate for Magistrate in the Longview District. I have never told or intimated anything of the kind to any one, but will say if the Fusion Ticket can be benefited by my running for said office, am willing to accept the place on said ticket. I am a McKinley Republican, believe in the principles of the Republican party nationally; have no use for bosses, rings and cliques in any party. I believe in letting the people rule in everything pertaining to public welfare. In my 14 years experience in the Fiscal Court I have always endeavored to serve my county faithfully and honestly. My aim has been and shall ever be to advance in public enterprises and everything that would be of benefit to the county generally, ever remembering I am human and liable to err. Very truly, T. H. MAJOR.

They go to continue the social settlement work which was begun in the mountains some three years ago. They will spend the summer months at Sasafraas, and will conduct classes in cooking, sewing and the like, as well as instruct in other essentials of housekeeping.

Sasafraas is sixty miles from Jackson, the nearest railway point. The party will not camp, as has been the custom, but will live with one of their former pupils.

Unnecessary Loss of Time.

Mr. W. S. Wheden, Cashier of the First National Bank of Pinerest, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the drugist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work." For sale by all druggists.

TWO GOOD SALES.

Of Real Estate Made Saturday to Flax Moayan.

The sale of two business houses on Main street owned by the estate of the late James Bradshaw was made Saturday afternoon and good prices were realized.

The storeroom occupied by Winter & Griffith, at 210 South Main, next door to the Kentuckian building brought $3,775 and was sold to Max J. Moayan. The lot is 22x100 feet with an old and almost valueless building on it. It was held at private sale at $4,000 and came within $225 of bringing this amount. The other building was a good three story store room next to the bank of Hopkinsville and it was also knocked off to Max J. Moayan at $5,025.

A Good Cough Medicine.

It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers," says Druggist J. Goldsmith, Van Buren, N. Y. "I have always used it in my own family both for ordinary coughs and colds and for the cough following a gripple, and find it very efficacious." Sold by all druggists.

A Hat That Worried Him.

Mr. W. F. Randle, the genial gentleman from Hopkinsville, who participated in the Old Fiddlers' Contest Monday night, had the misfortune to lose his hat. Now a hat lost in such a crowd was as precious on that occasion is nothing remarkable, and should not have bothered the gentleman in the least. But, he was bothered. It was not the losing of his hat or the thought of going without a hat that worried him. The question at issue with him was this: "What should he tell his wife when he reached home as Trenton was a dry town?"—Trenton Democrat.

By Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera And Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I am sure that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at one time saved my life," says A. E. Lafayette, of Gregory Landing, Clark county, Missouri. "I was in such bad shape the doctors said I could not live. When I was at the lowest ebb, one of my neighbors brought in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I took it and got instant relief. I soon got up and around. JURY DISAGREED.

And Contemnation Proceedings Go Over to July Term.

The County Court has been busy since Monday last, hearing condemnation proceedings for the right-of-way over the lands of Mrs. Mattie Gaines, Jas. Golliday, and John Fry Stewart, says the Cadiz Record.

The Gaines case was begun Friday and finished Tuesday, and the jury, after several hours of deliberation, hopelessly disagreed and were discharged by the Court. The case goes over to July term. Three of these jurors were for giving $50 per acre and one line of fence, while the other three were for $300 and $750 damages.

We understand that the cases of Golliday and Stewart were compromised, but failed to learn what the terms were.

Can a Mason Go to Heaven?

The important topic before the United Presbyterian General Assembly at Des Moines, Iowa, was revision of the creed which provides that no member of any secret society can be a member of the church. The matter was hotly discussed for more than two hours, but final decision was postponed till later in the session.

The Masonic and Odd Fellows' orders were special objects of attack, one delegate going so far as to say he believed no member of a secret society could ever reach heaven.

Dr. James Crowe of Philadelphia, was particularly bitter against the Masonic order, and called the exercises of the lodges "worshiping without Christ."

Rev. J. M. Wallace thought some members of some societies might be admitted to the church, but wished to exclude Masons.

Dr. McMillan thought fraternalisms taught by secret societies, was anti-Christ.

Rev. T. E. Moffatt, of New York, said no man could be both a Mason or an Odd Fellow and a Christian.

Rev. E. K. Smith, the only colored delegate, thought secret societies were a wrong because they compelled a man to keep secrets from his wife, which was contrary to the Bible teachings.

NEW TRIAL FOR CLARK.

The Sturgis Doctor Gets another Chance in the Waller Murder Case.

Frankfort, Ky., June 22.—The Court of appeals adjourned today for the summer vacation. A number of cases were disposed of today.

The case of Dr. Clark vs. the commonwealth was reversed. This is the case of the Sturgis physician sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary in connection with the death of Cora Waller.

Miss Waller died on the operating table in Dr. Clark's office. Her fiancé committed suicide when he saw her die. Clark was charged with murder. The case is reversed upon question of evidence principally, Judge O'Rear writing the opinion.

The case was tried in Webster county circuit court on a change of venue. Upon appeal the case was ably briefed and argued for appellant by Mr. A. O. Stanley, of Henderson. The court here sustains Mr. Stanley on many points.

The opinion goes into the evidence at length in a manuscript of thirty-two pages. The case is reversed on erroneous instructions, failure to admit some evidence and admission of other evidence not competent. The case is remanded for a new trial.

B. T. UNDERWOOD

Passes Away After a Lingered Illness.

Had Been a Great Sufferer For Several Years.—In His 78th Year.

Capt. Benjamin T. Underwood died at his home in this city Friday night, after a long and painful illness.

He had been an invalid for ten years, due in part to rheumatism and in part to a fall that broke his thigh several years ago.

Capt. Underwood was born in Shelby county, Ky., Nov. 2, 1823, and was in the 78th year of his age. He was the youngest of fourteen children. In 1843 he came to Hopkinsville and engaged in mercantile pursuits, which he followed for thirty years.

In September 1861 he organized a company of Federal troops and his company became Co. A, 25 Ky. Infantry. After the battle of Shiloh he resigned his commission and returned home. Subsequent to the war he became a leader of the Republican party and in 1880 was elected circuit court clerk, which position he filled six years.

Capt. Underwood was married in 1844 to Miss Ethelinda C. Campbell who died in 1867. One son, Mr. G. B. Underwood, was the result of this union. He resides here, and is a prominent coal merchant. In 1869 Capt. Underwood married Mrs. Martha Roach Randolph, a daughter of Capt. C. W. Roach, of Trigg county, and widow of Dr. Wm. Randolph. Of this marriage one son also survives, Mr. Thos. C. Underwood, editor of the New Era. His devoted wife, who has so tenderly cared for him through all his sufferings likewise survives him.

The funeral services were held at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, being conducted by Rev. J. T. Rushing, of the Methodist church.

VICTOR EMMANUEL'S COINS.

Valuable Collection of an Ecclesiastic Royal Numismatist.

Almost the only item of positive information which inquiries were able to gather when King Victor Emmanuel III. came to the throne, says the London Post, was: "He is an enthusiastic collector of coins." The information failed to give much satisfaction. A coin collector might be a pedant or merely a man with a hobby, or, again, an enlightened archaeologist fond of using coins as stepping stones to accurate historical knowledge. During the past few months Italians have almost ceased to think of their sovereign as a numismatist, though they are aware that his valuable collection of Italian coins has been specially arranged in some of the rooms of the Quirinal. Now, however, their interest has been reawakened by the announcement that the king has bought the immense and unrivaled collection of Italian coins formed by the late Senator Filippo Morigioli, marquis of Montecorona.

King Victor Emmanuel's passion for coins dates from his childhood, when his English governess, Miss Leveson, told him that the king of the East, now Gen. Osi, the king's preceptor, took advantage of the taste for coins thus awakened in the child to teach him the history of the various Italian cities of the middle ages as illustrated by their coinage. Gradually the king's collection grew until it numbered 20,000 specimens, many of the most extremely rare, of medieval and modern Italian coins. Sig. Vitellini, one of the chief authorities on numismatics, who has often served as intermediary for the purchase of coins for the royal collection, says that the king knows every one of his coins by heart, and that when at Florence or Naples he happened not to have his collection with him he could immediately decide without reference whether or not any coin which he may have been asked to buy was or was not included.

The acquisition of the Morigioli collection by the king will have a general interest much greater than that connected with the mere fact that the two best collections in Italy are now to be amalgamated, and that the 32,000 Morigioli coins are to be added to the 20,000 and more coins of the king. The late Marquis Morigioli, though proud of his splendid collection, would never allow a catalogue to be published nor illustrations of his collection produced in the technical reviews. King Victor Emmanuel has given orders for a catalogue of the collection to be made, which, together with all the published catalogues of Italian and foreign coins, containing Italian coins, will be published under the title of "Le Monnaie Numismatique Italienne."

The "corpus" will comprise 100 to 150 volumes, printed in 10 parts, of which the first (printed by the publisher, Loescher, of Venice) will contain a list of the coins of the king's collection, and will illustrate the royal armory of the king in Italy, the Naples museum collection and those of the Brena gallery at Milan, of the Bargello at Florence, of Papadopoli at Venice, of Greville at Milan and Della Zana at Padua. The Italian collection comes low on the list, and is very poor, even in papal coins.

Every morning between six and ten hours the king passes more than an hour in arranging his collection, examining the coins and clearing up the points relating to their history. The addition of the Morigioli collection will provide him with work for many months to come.

A Cup of Good Coffee

To get a really good cup of coffee you'll have to start back of the actual making; you'll have to look to the roasting and the grinding. In ARBUCKLES' you have a coffee that's scientifically roasted, and delivered to you with all the pores of the berry hermetically sealed. You're sure of a good cup of coffee because all the coffee flavor and aroma are kept intact until you want it. The fame of ARBUCKLES' induced other coffee packers to put out imitations of it. These imitations cost the grocer (and you) a cent a pound less than ARBUCKLES'. But don't be tempted to buy a package of some other coffee when you can get for it is actually less expensive than the cheap kind; goes further—besides being better flavored, more satisfying.

Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee

You will find a list of useful articles in each package of Arbuckles' Coffee. A definite part of one of these articles becomes yours when you buy the coffee. The one you select from the list will be sent you on condition that you send to our London Department a certain number of signatures cut from the wrappers.

Wild Goose Linctum cures rheumatism and neuralgia. 25c at all druggists.

Kentucky was a pioneer state in the construction of good roads, and some of the turnpikes built fifty and seventy-five years ago are still models of road engineering.

Call at all drug stores and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are an elegant physic. They also improve the appetite, strengthen the digestion and regulate the liver and bowels. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect.

Good roads are the best investments the farmer can make. The cost of hauling his products to market can be easily cut half in two by the use of modern roads.

A severe sprain will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. Many cases have occurred, however, in which a cure has been effected in less than one week by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale by all druggists.

The next Legislature will be called upon to pass a modern road law. In New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and other states the state has an engineer and gives state aid to the construction of important thoroughfares.

Kentucky has some of the finest turnpikes in the world, but President Moore of the National Good Roads Association says he has never seen a single modern dirt road in the state.

The National Good Roads Association has been ten years in growing to its present position of power and usefulness. It first built good roads at the World's Fair, and since then has held conventions in every part of the United States. It has secured the organization of a Good Roads Bureau in the Department of Agriculture, and has succeeded in having planks endorsing good roads inserted in the platforms of both parties. Its object is to promote good roads legislation in every state. The next National convention will be held at Buffalo, September, and it is hoped that this will be the greatest good roads meeting in the world.
